

pays a subscription fee, the satellite signal is unscrambled and the customer can receive DirecTV's Satellite Programming. (Id. ¶ 4).

Despite the encryption technology used by DirecTV, individuals have created devices and equipment (collectively referred to as "Pirate Access Devices") to surreptitiously pirate DirecTV's signal without paying DirecTV's subscription fee. (Id. ¶ 5). Consequently, DirecTV has attempted to stop the sale and distribution of these Pirate Access Devices by executing writs of seizure on businesses that sell these Devices and then bringing lawsuits, such as this one, against the individuals who purchased and allegedly used and/or distributed Pirate Access Devices. This case is just one out of over one hundred that have been filed in this Court.

In this case, on January 28, 2004, DirecTV executed a Writ of Seizure against Michael Worley and his business known as EQ Stuff, Inc. (Id. ¶ 7). As a result of the business records obtained through the Writ of Seizure, DirecTV learned that Defendant purchased Pirate Access Devices. (Id. ¶ 8). Specifically, he purchased one "EQ Bootloader" from EQ Stuff, which was shipped to Defendant's address in Wadesboro, North Carolina. (Id. at ¶¶ 8, 23). A "bootloader" is a hardware device that provides a "glitch" during the boot cycle that allows use of a DirecTV Access Card, even though the Access Card was disabled by DirecTV. (Doc. No. 13-2, ¶ 31). As a result, the bootloader allows a person to gain unauthorized and illegal access to DirecTV television programming. (Id. at ¶ 32).

On January 28, 2004, DirecTV filed its Complaint, alleging the following causes of action against Defendant: (1) violations of the Cable Communications Policy Act, pursuant to 47 U.S.C. § 605(a); (2) violations of 18 U.S.C. § 2511; (3) willful assembly or modification of devices or equipment, in violation of 47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(4); and (4) civil conversion. DirecTV seeks injunctive relief, statutory damages or actual damages, punitive damages, and reasonable attorneys' fees and costs. On February 27, 2004, DirecTV served the Summons and Complaint on Defendant.

On August 17, 2004, in light of the fact that Defendant had not answered the Complaint or otherwise appeared in this matter, DirecTV filed a Motion for Entry of Default. On August 18, 2004, the Clerk entered default against Defendant. DirecTV now seeks to have default judgment entered against Defendant. DirecTV further asks the Court to award statutory damages of $10,000 for Defendant's violation of 47 U.S.C. §§ 605(e)(3)(C), 605(e)(3)(B), 18 U.S.C. § 2511, and 18 U.S.C. § 2520(c)(B)(2)(b), as well as attorneys' fees and costs in the amount of $606.46. (Pl. Mem. In Supp. p. 1; see also Doc. No. 11). DirecTV also asks the Court to "permanently enjoin Defendant, Defendant's employees, agents, servants, successors and assigns, and any other person acting in concert with any of them, from committing or assisting in the commission of any violation of 47 U.S.C. § 605 or 18 U.S.C. § 2511." (Id. pp. 5-6).

II. DISCUSSION

When a party against whom a judgment for affirmative relief is sought has failed to plead or otherwise defend, and after the clerk has entered default against such party, the opposing party is entitled to move for default judgment. See FED. R. CIV. P. 55. Moreover, "[a]verments in a pleading to which a responsive pleading is required . . . are admitted when not denied in the responsive pleading." FED. R. CIV. P. 8(d). However, "'a default is not treated as an absolute confession by the defendant of his liability and of the plaintiff's right to recover.'" Ryan v. Homecomings Fin. Network, 253 F.3d 778, 780 (4th Cir. 2001) (quoting Nishimatsu Constr. Co. Ltd. v. Houston Nat'l Bank, 515 F.2d 1200, 1206 (5th Cir. 1975)).

A. Violation of 18 U.S.C. § 2511

1. Statutory damages

Section 2511 of the Wiretapping Act prohibits any person from intentionally intercepting, endeavoring to intercept, or procuring any other person to intercept or endeavor to intercept any wire, oral, or electronic communication. 18 U.S.C. § 2511(1)(a). Section 2520, which is also part of the Wiretapping Act, provides the civil damages remedy for violations of 18 U.S.C. § 2511. Section 2520(a) provides, in relevant part, as follows:

Except as provided in section 2511(2)(a)(ii), any person whose wire, oral, or electronic communication is intercepted, disclosed, or intentionally used in violation of this chapter may in a civil action recover from the person . . . which is engaged in that violation such relief as may be appropriate.

18 U.S.C. § 2520(a).

As noted above, upon entry of default the allegations in the complaint, except those relating to damages, are taken as true. Since default has been entered against Defendant, the Court takes as true the allegation that Defendant purchased one “EQ Bootloader” and “intentionally intercepted, endeavored to intercept, or procured other persons to intercept electronic communications from DirecTV.” (Compl. ¶¶ 20, 33). DirecTV has, therefore, established a valid claim under Section 2511 and is entitled to default judgment on this claim.

Having concluded that default judgment is warranted on this claim, the Court must now turn to the issue of damages. Damages for violations of Section 2511 are provided for by Sections 2520(b)(2) and (c)(2), which provide:

(b) In an action under this section, appropriate relief includes: . . . (2) damages under subsection (c) and punitive damages in appropriate cases . . .

(c)(2) In any other action under this section, the court may assess as damages whichever is the greater of – (A) the sum of the actual damages suffered by the plaintiff and any profits made by the violator as a result of the violation; or (B) statutory damages of whichever is the greater of $100 a day for each violation or $100,000.

18 U.S.C. §§ 2520(b)(2), (c)(2) (emphasis added).

The language of this statute has led various courts, including the Fourth Circuit, to conclude that an award of damages is permissive, as opposed to mandatory. See Nalley v. Nalley, 53 F.3d 649, 652 (4th Cir. 1995) (concluding that the use of the word “may” indicates that “Congress intended to confer upon district courts the discretion to decline to award damages in applying § 2520(c)(2)”); see also Dorris v. Absher, 179 F.3d 420, 426 (6th Cir. 1999) (noting that the plain language of Section 2520 gives district courts the discretion to decline to impose damages); Reynolds v. Spears, 93 F.3d 428, 435 (8th Cir. 1996) (affirming district court’s finding that damages under the wiretapping statute are discretionary, as evidenced by the use of the word “may”); DirecTV v. Brown, 371 F.3d 814, 818-19 (11th Cir. 2004) (agreeing with the Fourth, Sixth, and Eighth Circuits that the use of the word “may” in Section 2520(c)(2) means that an award of damages under this statute is discretionary). Therefore, even if there has been a violation of Section 2511, the Court may, in its discretion, refuse to award any damages under Section 2520(c)(2).

In determining whether to award such damages:

. . . a district court should make an individualized assessment of each defendant. Factors that may be considered include whether the plaintiff suffered financial harm, the extent to which a violation occurred and unlawfully intercepted signals were disclosed, whether the defendant had a legitimate reason for his or her actions, whether the defendant profited from his or her acts, and whether an award of damages would serve a legitimate purpose.

DirecTV, Inc. v. Guzzi, 308 F. Supp. 2d 788, 790 (E.D. Mi. 2004); see also Nalley, 53 F.3d at 653-54 (denying an award of damages to plaintiff pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 2520(c)(2) after considering whether plaintiff suffered financial loss and whether defendant received a profit).

In exercising this discretion in the instant case, the Court concludes that damages are not appropriate. Aside from potentially receiving DirecTV's satellite television programming for free of charge for a period of time, there is no indication that Defendant otherwise profited from his conduct. There is no evidence that he used the device for commercial purposes or purchased the device for resale. There are no allegations that Defendant induced others to commit similar violations. Although DirecTV alleges that "[t]he value of the programs that Defendant[] [was] capable of viewing without authorization may easily reach thousands of dollars in a single year,"¹ there is no allegation as to how long Defendant actually used the device or evidence showing the dollar amount DirecTV would have received in subscription fees but did not obtain as a result of Defendant's activity. The statements in the Affidavit of James Whalen (Doc. No. 13-2) present generalizations of the possible programs and estimates for the average costs for programming that Defendant may have viewed using the EQ Bootloader. There is no evidence of the amount of Defendant's actual personal use of the device. Therefore, the Court denies DirecTV's request for statutory damages arising from Defendant's violation of Section 2511.²

2. Attorneys' fees and costs

While an award of statutory damages may serve the legitimate and useful purpose of ¹Compl. ¶ 22 (emphasis added).

²In to order receive an award of statutory damages on this claim, DirecTV must provide more than speculative damages. Nothing in the record before this Court provides specific evidence that Defendant's conduct caused financial harm suffered to DirecTV. Evidence such as the number of months Defendant used the pirate access device or the programs Defendant viewed would provide this Court with a reference by which to evaluate and award damages under this statute.

deterrence, the Court finds that this purpose can be met by an award of costs and attorneys' fees. Section 2520 allows a court to award "a reasonable attorney's fee and other litigation costs reasonably incurred." 18 U.S.C. § 2520(b)(3).

Although the Court finds that DirecTV is not entitled to damages for a violation of § 2511, the Court will order Defendant to pay reasonable attorneys' fees and costs to DirecTV. DirecTV submitted the Affidavits of Leslie O'Toole, Patricia Kerner, and Felix Chevalier to prove the attorneys' fees and costs incurred in this matter. (Docs. Nos. 9-11). These Affidavits state that DirecTV has incurred legal fees in an amount of $382.46 and costs in the amount of $240.00. A review of previous default judgments and corresponding affidavits filed by DirecTV lead this Court to conclude that the requested legal fees and costs should be modified in certain respects.³ The Court will award DirecTV attorneys' fees in the amount of $322.46 and costs in the amount of $240.00.

B. Violation of 47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(4)

In its Complaint, DirecTV alleges that Defendant violated 47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(4). Section

³With regard to this case, and after a review of the numerous motions for default judgment filed by DirecTV, the Court concludes that, DirecTV is entitled to $240.00 in costs ($90 for the service fee and $150.00 for the filing fee) and $322.46 in attorneys' fees. Moreover, the Court notes that with every motion for default judgment filed by DirecTV, Plaintiff includes an affidavit by either Felix Chevalier or Robert Swofford, both of whom work with the law firm of Greer, Herz & Adams, L.L.P. In every affidavit by Mr. Chevalier and Mr. Swofford that this Court has seen, they contend that DirecTV has "incurred and been billed at least $36.96 in attorney's fees . . . [and] DirecTV has incurred an additional $60.00 which has not been billed." No further explanation is given as to how those amounts were determined, such as the per hour rate of the attorney reviewing the file, and no indication is given as to the reason for the $60.00 in non-billed fees. Consequently, in this case, the Court concludes that DirecTV is entitled to $322.46 in attorneys' fees, calculated as $25 to review the Complaint, $68.00 for time spent by a paralegal preparing the motion for entry of default, $192.50 for time spent by an attorney preparing the Motion for Default Judgment, and $36.96 for attorneys' fees incurred by Greer, Herz & Adams, L.L.P. See DirecTV, Inc. v. Agee, – F. Supp. 2d –, 2005 WL 3455263 (D.D.C. Dec. 12, 2005) (noting plaintiff's requested attorneys' fees are excessive in light of the repetition of similar litigation).

605(e)(4) provides as follows:

Any person who manufactures, assembles, modifies, imports, exports, sells, or distributes any electronic, mechanical, or other device or equipment, knowing or having reason to know that the device or equipment is primarily of assistance in the unauthorized decryption of satellite cable programming, or direct-to-home satellite services, or is intended for any other activity prohibited by subsection (a) of this section, shall be fined not more than $500,000 for each violation, or imprisoned for not more than 5 years for each violation, or both. For purposes of all penalties and remedies established for violations of this paragraph, the prohibited activity established herein as it applies to each device shall be deemed a separate violation.

47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(4). Any person aggrieved by a violation of Section 605(e)(4) may bring a private civil action against the violator and seek damages under Section 605(e)(3)(C). See 47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(3)(C).

Although Defendant, by his default, admits DirecTV's well-plead allegations of fact, "a default is not treated as an absolute confession by the defendant of his liability and of the plaintiff's right to recover." Ryan, 253 F.3d at 780 (quoting Nishimatsu, 515 F.2d at 1206). Consequently, the Court must determine whether the allegations in DirecTV's Complaint support the relief sought in this action. Id. (citations omitted). In the instant case, DirecTV alleged in its Complaint that: (1) Defendant purchased "EQ Bootloader;" and (2) "by removing and inserting Pirate Access Devices and/or inserting illegally programmed Access Cards into valid DirecTV Receivers, Defendant[] engaged in the unlawful assembly and/or modification of devices primarily of assistance in the unauthorized decryption of Satellite Programming." (Compl. ¶¶ 20, 41).

Numerous courts have found, and this Court agrees, that Section 605(e)(4) targets "upstream manufacturers and distributors, not the ultimate consumer of pirating devices." DirecTV v. Borich, No. Civ. A. 1:03-2146, 2004 WL 2359414 (S.D. W. Va. Sept. 17, 2004) (noting that the act of installing and activating a pirate access device does not convert an individual into a manufacturer or distributor of such device as contemplated by Section 605(e)(4)); see also DirecTV v. Albright, No. Civ. A. 03-4603, 2003 WL 22956416 (E.D. Pa. Dec. 9, 2003) (finding that a “reasonable reading of this provision demonstrates that § 605(e)(4) targets upstream manufacturers and distributors, not the ultimate consumer of pirating devices”); DirecTV v. McDougall, No. Civ. A.SA-03-CA-1165, 2004 WL 2580769 (W.D. Tx. Nov. 12, 2004) (same); DirecTV v. Robson, 333 F. Sup. 2d 589, 595 (W.D. La. 2004) (stating that section 605(e)(4) is a provision relating to manufacturers and sellers, rather than individual users); DirecTV v. Hussain, No. Civ. A.03-6482, 2004 WL 1125937 (E.D. Pa. May 20, 2004) (finding that Section 605(e)(4) relates to manufacturers and sellers, rather than users).

Moreover, even if Section 605(e)(4) were to apply to the individual consumer, this provision does not prohibit the mere purchase and use of a Pirate Access Device. See 47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(4) (prohibiting the manufacture, assembly, modification, importation, exportation, selling or distribution of such devices). Furthermore, the Court does not find that merely inserting and removing a Pirate Access Device and/or inserting illegally programmed Access Cards into a valid DirecTV Receiver is the type of modification or assembly prohibited by Section 605(e)(4). See DirecTV v. Borich, No. Civ. A. 1:03-2146, 2004 WL 2359414 (S.D. W. Va. Sept. 17, 2004) (noting that the act of “removing and inserting Pirate Access Devices and/or inserting illegally programmed Access Cards into valid DirecTV Receivers is not the type of assembly or modification prohibited by the statute”).

In the instant case, DirecTV’s Complaint does not allege that Defendant is an upstream manufacturer or distributor, nor did DirecTV sufficiently establish that Defendant manufactured, assembled, modified, imported, exported, sold, or distributed Pirate Access Devices. Accordingly, default judgment is not appropriate on DirecTV’s Section 605(e)(4) claim.

C. Violation of 47 U.S.C. § 605(a)

The Complaint also alleged Defendant violated 47 U.S.C. § 605(a). Section 605(a) provides in pertinent part as follows:

No person not being authorized by the sender shall intercept any radio communication and divulge or publish the existence, contents, substance, purport, effect, or meaning of such intercepted communication to any person. No person not being entitled thereto shall receive or assist in receiving any interstate or foreign communication by radio and use such communication (or any information therein contained) for his own benefit or for the benefit of another not entitled thereto. No person having received any intercepted radio communication or having become acquainted with the contents, substance, purport, effect, or meaning of such communication (or any part thereof) or use such communication (or any information therein contained) for his own benefit or for the benefit of another not entitled thereto.

47 U.S.C. § 605(a). Any person aggrieved by a violation of Section 605(a) may bring a private civil action against the violator and seek damages under Section 605(e)(3)(C). See 47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(3)(C).

As noted above, upon entry of default the allegations in the complaint, except those relating to damages, are taken as true. Consequently, the Court takes as true the allegations that Defendant purchased one “EQ Bootloader” from EQStuff and “illegally and without authorization, intercepted, received and exhibited, or otherwise assisted in the unauthorized interception, reception or exhibition of Satellite Programming transmitted by DirecTV . . . [and] used such communications for his own benefit or for the benefit of others who were not entitled to such communications.” (Compl. ¶¶ 20, 28). By making such allegations DirecTV has established a valid claim under Section 605(a) and is entitled to default judgment on this claim.

Having concluded that default judgment is warranted on this claim, the Court must now turn to the issue of damages. Damages for a violation of Section 605(a) are permitted as follows:

The Court – (i) may grant temporary and final injunctions on such terms as it may deem reasonable to prevent or restrain violations of subsection (a) of this section; (ii) may award damages as described in subparagraph (C); and (iii) shall direct the recovery of full costs, including reasonable attorneys’ fees to an aggrieved party who prevails.

47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(3)(B) (emphasis added). Subparagraph (C) provides as follows:

Damages awarded by any court under this section shall be computed, at the election of the aggrieved party, in accordance with either of the following subclauses . . . (II) the party aggrieved may recover an award of statutory damages for each violation of subsection (a) of this section involved in the action in a sum of not less than $1,000 or more than $10,000, as the court considers just 47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(3)(C)(i)(II).

With regard to an injunction, the Court will permanently enjoin Defendant from receiving, assisting in receiving, transmitting, assisting in transmitting, divulging, or publishing DirecTV’s satellite transmissions in violation of Section 605(a). Moreover, as discussed in detail above, the Court has already concluded that DirecTV is entitled to attorneys’ fees in the amount of $322.46 and costs in the amount of $240.00. That leaves the issue of statutory damages.

The award of statutory damages under Section 605(e)(3) is committed to the Court’s discretion. See DirecTV v. Haskell, 344 F. Supp. 2d 761, 763-64 (D. Me. 2004); DirecTV, Inc. v. Montes, 338 F. Supp. 2d 352, 355 (D. Conn. 2004). Moreover, the statute does not make an award of statutory damages mandatory, as evidenced by the use of the permissive term “may.” 47 U.S.C. § 47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(3)(B)(ii) (stating that the court “may award damages as described in subparagraph (C)”). However, if the court decides to award statutory damages, such damages must be “not less than $1,000 or more than $10,000, as the court considers just.” 47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(3)(C)(i)(II).

Where courts have decided that an award of statutory damages are necessary, such courts have used various methods to calculate “just damages,” including assessing the maximum statutory rate; estimating the amount of services the defendant pirated and applying a multiplier to that figure; adopting the plaintiff’s estimate of the amount of services pirated; and, where there is no evidence of actual usage or commercial advantage, applying the statutory minimum for each pirated device. See Haskell, 344 F. Supp. 2d at 764; Montes, 338 F. Supp. 2d at 355. While using these methods, court have also considered a number of factors, including: (1) whether the defendant profited as a result of the violation; (2) whether the defendant assisted or induced others in violating the statute; (3) whether the defendant’s violation was willful or flagrant; (4) whether the damages will be sufficient to deter similar conduct; and (5) whether the damages are comparable to those awarded in similar cases. See DirecTV, Inc. v. Huynh, 318 F. Supp. 2d 1122, 1131 (M.D. Ala. 2004). In sum, “[i]n its broad discretion for determining statutory damages, the district court should consider both the willfulness of the defendant’s conduct and the deterrent value of the sanction imposed.” Haskell, 344 F. Supp. 2d at 764 (quoting Cable/Home Communication Corp. v. Network Prods., Inc., 902 F. 2d 829, 852 (11th Cir. 1990)).

In the instant case, DirecTV alleges that Defendant purchased one “EQ Bootloader” from EQStuff, which Defendant used to intercept or receive DirecTV’s Satellite Programming and which resulted in benefitting Defendant or others not entitled to such communications. (Compl. ¶ 28). DirecTV further maintains that Defendant’s violation of 47 U.S.C. § 605(a) “injured and will continue to injure DirecTV’s ability to maximize the revenues which it seeks to derive from the Satellite Programming, as DirecTV has been deprived of the benefit of subscribers to the Satellite Programming.” (Id. ¶ 30). In light of the evidence of possession of a Pirate Access Device by Defendant for a period of time shortly after his DirecTV account was suspended, the Court finds that an order of statutory damages is warranted as a deterrent for Defendant's willful behavior. See DirecTV, Inc. v. Carrera, No:05-2014, 2006 WL 1667461 (4th Cir., June 14, 2006) (unpublished)(affirming district court's finding that the defendant's violations of 47 U.S.C. § 605(a) could be inferred from his possession of a pirate access device and maintenance of a suspended DirecTV account). Upon consideration of the facts and circumstances in this case, the Court finds that damages in the amount of $5,000.00 for Defendant's violation of Section 605(a) is just and sufficient to deter Defendant and others from future misconduct.

D. Abandonment of Claims

As noted above, in addition to its 18 U.S.C. § 2511, 47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(4), and 47 U.S.C. § 605(a) claims, DirecTV asserted a claims against Defendant for civil conversion and sought damages under several North Carolina statutes. DirecTV did not seek default judgment with regard to those claims. Consequently, the Court finds that the civil conspiracy and state claims should be dismissed pursuant to Rule 41(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure for failure to prosecute.

III. ORDER

IT IS, THEREFORE, ORDERED that Plaintiff's Motion for Default Judgment is hereby GRANTED with regard to its claim under 18 U.S.C. § 2511.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Plaintiff's Motion for Default Judgment is hereby DENIED with respect to its claim under 47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(4).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Plaintiff's Motion for Default Judgment is hereby GRANTED with respect to its claim pursuant to 47 U.S.C. § 605(a).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Defendant is permanently enjoined from committing or assisting in the commission of any violation of 47 U.S.C. § 605 or committing or assisting in committing any violation of 18 U.S.C. § 2511.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Plaintiff is awarded $5,000.00 statutory damages for Defendant's violation of 47 U.S.C. § 605(a).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Plaintiff is awarded attorneys' fees in the amount of $382.46 and costs in the amount of $240.00.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that in light of Plaintiff's failure to pursue the remainder of its claims against Defendant, those claims are hereby DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the entry of final judgment as to all claims against Defendant is appropriate at this time pursuant to Rule 54(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and there is no just reason for delay.
